

Master D.Gran.

We wish to extend to you our admiration for the way in which you have administered the forces defending the main gate. Under your care, it is secure against the intrusion of outsiders who do not understand our need for seclusion.

We have concerns, however, that you may wish to ally yourself with the powers of the Water Temple. We must request that you do not. Maintain your vigilance! Great reward shall come to those who help secure us against the outsiders who would violate our retreat.

Things will go much better for all of us if you comply. It would truly be a pity if your recklessness forced me to cut back the main gate's weekly allotment of eleven women.

Bedrath